CyberBuyer is a provider of web space to auction goods and services on our web site. The information below helps to show the uses, terms, and responsibilities of CyberBuyer, the sellers, and the bidders. This information will serve as general instructions, and does contain some legal terms defining what we expect our role to be. CyberBuyer cannot be held liable for the actions of the bidders, and the sellers on our site. All users must follow the policy of "caveat emptor" or "buyer beware, buy at your own risk". However, we do take an active role in monitoring their conduct, and reserve the right to exclude any company or individual from access to our services if we determine their actions, or their items for sale, to be inappropriate.

The Internet being the fragile environment that it is, CyberBuyer cannot be held responsible for server down time, or your inability to access our site. Notifications sent by email may take longer than expected, and cannot be counted on to inform you of an item's status. In the event of technical problems, we reserve the right to cancel, restart, or extend an auction as the circumstances may dictate, however CyberBuyer is not obligated to. In using our system, all users agree to hold harmless CyberBuyer from any and all liability. Please also visit our CyberBuyer Policies section for more information on shipping, returns, inventory, security, payment, and taxes.

Using Our Services

By using our services as either a bidder or an auctioneer, it is assumed that you have read the guidelines provided here, and are expected to follow them.

Becoming an Auctioneer

At CyberBuyer, we allow sellers to auction items through their Personal Auction Websites to offer many items from the same seller at the same time. These are permanent sites, with home pages. The auctioneers are charged a fee only if their item sells. Click here for more information on becoming an auctioneer.

General Bidding and Auction Guidelines

In order to bid in an auction, you must first register with CyberBuyer. There is no charge for registering. On every item in an auction, a minimum bid and a minimum increase is set by the seller. Our software will not accept a lower bid than either the opening bid, or the current bid plus the minimum increase. If an inappropriate bid is placed, a bidder will be notified immediately that their bid has not been accepted, and is provided with a form to correct the bid. Any current high bidders who are overbid at this time will receive notification by email.

On items with a quantity of 1, a Maximum Bid may be placed when bidding on an item. A Maximum Bid is confidential, and will be used only to increase your bid automatically in case you are overbid.

The seller may opt to auction more than 1 of any given item. In the case of quantities greater than 1, slightly different information will be displayed on the bidding form. Typically called a Dutch Auction, this format will allow bidders to state the quantity of the items that they are bidding on (it is not necessary to bid on the entire quantity). At the end of the auction, bidders with the highest bids will win the quantity they bid on. In the event of a tie in the high bid, the bidder with the greatest number of items bid on will prevail. In the event of a tie in both high bid and quantity, the first time any bid on this particular lot has been placed by the bidder will prevail. The quantity is divided up between the winning bidders until there are none left. Often times a bidder will have a winning bid, but only a partial quantity is left at their bid level. In this case the bidder is expected to accept whatever quantity remains.

Ending Dates

Each auction has its own ending time listed in the bidding form. The bidding time is also displayed on this form. Auctions end automatically at this time. The items remain viewable till midnight EST of that day, whereupon notifications are sent out to the winning bidders, with copies going to the seller. At this point the seller and the buyer must make arrangements between each other. CyberBuyer has no other responsibility other than maintaining the bids, and providing the facility to hold the auctions. All warranties and expressed conditions are stated by the seller, who is completely responsible for them. CyberBuyer wants to be informed of any disputes if you cannot resolve them first between yourselves. We will attempt to resolve disputes between buyer and seller, but there are no assurances that we will be successful. Contact us at customer service.

Auction Results

The results of items won in an auction are displayed for a period of time on the main auction pages till midnight EST of that day. By selecting an auction, the results for that auction will display the items and winning bidders. This information is provided as a service to our users, and should be used as a guideline to determine the market for a given item, as well as to see who you may be bidding against. Auction Winners may refer to My Watchdog- View Purchases with basic information that lasts indefinitely. Auction Sellers may refer to their Auction Manager - Auction Management - View Past Results for complete information that lasts indefinitely. Winning bidders & sellers will be sent emails that they won or sold the item. Anyone may also refer to Last Week's Auction Results for winners and the winning bid of the prior week's auctions. This page is updated approximately every Monday night. Please do not contact us to ask if you were a winner or just curious of how the auction ended.

Buyer and Seller Responsibilities

By placing a bid, you are legally and ethically bound to purchase the item should you be the highest bidder at the end of the auction. Fraudulent bids are not tolerated, and any recourse we feel necessary will be taken. Failure to pay for items won may result in removal from our services.

By placing an item for auction, we assume that the seller has accurately represented the item for sale, and must stand behind it. If you discover an item to be mis-represented, or have a professional state in writing that the item is not authentic, you may request a full refund directly from the seller. Please see our Policies section for more information on Returns. We also expect delivery to be accomplished within a reasonable period of time, as determined by the shipping and delivery terms included in the description of the item for sale, or on the Personal Auction Website's home page. We strongly suggest for your peace of mind and to insure that you either receive the item you paid for, or payment, or have recourse if the item is mis-represented, that both buyers and sellers recommend using a transaction or escrow service, such as www.Trade-Direct.com TM. These companies act as brokers and typically charge a small fee for their service. However, in the end both you and the other person can rest assured that you will be satisfied with the transaction.

Shilling

It is directly against the policies of CyberBuyer to manipulate the price of an item through the use of third party bidding, or sellers placing bids directly. Likewise, a user may not give feedback on themselves using an alias email or their own email. This will not be tolerated, and in the event of direct evidence of this activity, the Auctioneer may be removed.

CyberBuyer is an upfront auction service. It really is very simple: the item for auction will be sold at the highest bid, unless there is a reserve auction, and we expect bidders to buy them at the prices they bid.

Thank You!

Having said all the legal terms, we appreciate your every visit to our site. We wish you the best of luck whether buying or selling. We also welcome your comments, suggestions, compliments, and questions. CyberBuyer was designed with you in mind, and a great many of our improvements are direct results of your input.
